A Highly Significant Meeting at the Opera House.

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS.

Good Citizens Combine Against Anarchy—An Eloquent Address by M. F. Taylor—Mayor Strickler Presided—McIntire's Speech.

Colorado Springs and El Paso county have witnessed many strange scenes in the past year, but perhaps none stranger than that of the gathering at the opera house last ngiht. It was a meeting conducted by Democrats in the interests of the Republican State ticket. The meeting was presided over by a life-long Democrat, the Mayor of this city, and the principal speaker was a Southern Democrat. They spoke from the same platform with the Republican candidate for Governor, and while declaring adherence to the principles and traditions of the political party of their choice pronounced themselves ready to vote for the men who will give to the State the standing before the people of the world that it once had. The speakers of the evening were Mr. M. F. Taylor, a prominent Denver attorney, and Albert W. McIntire, the Republican candidate for Governor.

The opera house was filled with people long before the hour for opening, and at 8 o'clock more than 500 had been turned away. It was a representative and distinguished gathering. It was enlivened by the presence of a hundred gentlemen from Denver. They arrived at 6:30 last evening on a special train and numbered some of the most prominent business men of Denver. They came to hear Mr. Taylor, as they were already familiar with the speeches of Mr. McIntire. They registered at The Antlers for dinner and left after the meeting last night. There were nearly 200 chairs placed on the stage and the distinguished visitors were given seats there.

Mayor Wm. M. Strickler, the Democrat who has twice been elected mayor of this city, presided. He first introduced Mr. McIntire with the simple announcement that he would be the next Governor of Colorado. Mr. McIntire, a man of pleasing address, and plain, business-like appearnce, stepped forward and began reading his speech. It took him about half an hour and he was listened to with the closest attention. He began by referring to the attitude of those who voted the Populist ticket two years ago with the hope of helping silver. He declared that the real platform of the Populist party is paper money, and not free silver. They are in favor of silver only to catch votes. He then pointed out that the sentiment for free coinage is growing in the Republican party as demonstrated by recent conventions. He then went on to discuss the silver question, showing how thoroughly he is a friend of the white metal. Then he declared that Populism is really socialism, and then he discussed the socialistic tendency of the age. He believed that the result of socialism would be imbecility or a return to barbarism. Many went to the Populist party two years ago in hopes of the reforms promised in every quarter. He asked them to consider if those promises had been fulfilled, and if the best men had been appointed to office by the Populist administration. The best evidence that they had not was the attitude of the Governor himself in discharging them. Men ignorant of the experiments of government in the past are not the men to advise what is the best remedy for present ills. Capital and labor when separated are both powerless. In a new country like this capital is especially necessary. Such a statement is elementary and would not be needed if there were not demagogues striving to array labor against capital. He holds it wise that labor should organize, but neither capitalists or laborers should be permitted to break the laws. Great combinations of capital which become dangerous should be guarded against by wise laws and the labor organizations should be dominated by patriotic men and real friends of labor and not by demagogues. No person should be above the law, capitalist or others. Mr. McIntire then spoke of the candidacy of Colonel Tom Bowen and said that he would be elected and that he can do more than all the Populists in the world for silver. The thing is to convince the outside world that the people of this State do not approve of such things as have passed here in the last two years. Then he touched on the legislative ticket, and asked what good it would do to defeat a man for Governor and have him immediately elected a United States Senator.

The Mayor then introduced Mr. Taylor in a few words as a Democrat who knows his duty as a citizen. Mr. Taylor is a man about 45 years of age, and wears a light blond mustache. He wore a black coat of the Prince Albert style buttoned close. He speaks in a full voice and vigorously. At times he is very eloquent in expression. There was an inclination to applaud and to find humor in his remarks when he intended none, and this seemed to bother him some, as he repeatedly told the people that he wanted their brains and not their heels. Mr. Taylor is uncommonly in deadly earnest in the matter and has evidently thought deeply on the growing tendency toward anarchy.

He began by saying that he took no credit to himself for the splendid audience, but attributed it to a higher motive. He believes that there are more good men than bad in this country, who will say to those who desire to disrupt this country "So far shall you go and no further." He warned his hearers that if they came there to hear abuse of any person they would be mistaken. He had nothing to do with Governor Waite, personally, and only desired to criticise him for his official acts. The fame and the reputation of Colorado should be dearer than life to its people. Mr. Taylor then began an exhaustive discourse showing the relations of the people of a country governed on the plan of these United States to the government. He traced the history of the formation and showed that the founders even feared two eras that might come to disrupt it. One has been met and safely passed. He, a Southern Democrat, voiced the youth of the portion of that land from which he comes when he thanks God that the flag flies over a united country. This was said in a bursts of eloquence that fairly set the people wild.

Mr. Taylor went on to say that the second era, if not upon us, is close at hand. It will not be long until the attempt is made openly or covertly to give the country to anarchy. Governor Waite is the symbol of the anarchistic tendency of this age. For the first time in history the dreadful thing has stalked abroad in the open light, and he has permitted himself to be heralded as the "grand old anarchist." Mr. Taylor then began to touch on some of the demonstrations in the Governor's career. In referring to the silver meeting in Denver in July 1893 when the blood to the bridles speech was made, he gave it as his opinion that much of the trouble that followed later was due to that meeting and not alone to the intemperate speech of the Governor. The Waite meeting at Salida when 10 men out of the 18 endorsed the calling of a special session of the legislature was the quintessence of demagoguery. Then he referred to the city hall trouble in Denver as one who had been an active participant in it. The Governor's desire was to debauch the fire and police departments into a political machine. He had not tried the civil courts, but was ready to do with force fifst.

Then Mr. Taylor referred to the course in the Cripple Creek trouble and how he had stood between offenders against the law and the constituted authorities in serving civil processes. He referred very happily to workingmen, but he said their great fault generally was that they do not always think correctly in political matters. It is not their fault they have not the time after a day of hard labor to give consideration to all matters touching affairs of government. He said that when a person sees a laboring man raising his hand to strike down the very laws that protect him and are his best safeguard that they should exclaim "Lord forgive them, they know not what they do." He is not the one to be blamed, but those who take advantage of him and would lead him wrong are the ones who should suffer.

Mr. Taylor said that the Governor had asked that he be tried at the bar of public opinion, and he was ready to take him at his word. He wants to see the votes piled so high over him on election day that Pike's Peak will be nothing more than a wart in comparison. "Do not permit it to go abroad that you justify such an administration of the laws. There is no silver issue here! We are all for silver! That is a question that will be settled for the right in one of the great political parties of the country!"

In a burst of eloquence Mr. Taylor said that he is a Democrat, he loves the traditions of the party and reveres the great leaders of the past, and he believes its present great leader is honest and wise; he respects Charles S. Thomas, and would be glad to give him the greatest political honors, but he knows his duty in this campaign, and he knows his place. Turning to Mr. McIntire, he pledged him his vote. He said that if hereafter he is ever twitted with having deserted his party he would turn to the situation as it is to-day, and point to it as his justification. This is no time to waste ammunition.

In closing Mr. Taylor addressed the women. He told them to teach their children that it is a sacred right to be permitted to cast their vote for those who govern them, and that if they then went to the polls in the coming election with that in their minds he had no fear for the result.

This closed the meeting, which was one of the most enthusiastic ever held in this city. Democrats and Republicans crowded around to meet Mr. McIntire and congratulate Mr. Taylor on his admirable address.

PROF. SWING DEAD.

The Eminent Chicago Clergyman's Illness Ends Fatally.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Professor David Swing died at his home on the Lake Shore drive at 5:15 this evening. He was taken ill about a week ago with gastric fever, which developed in a few days into acute jaundice. He had been in a comatose condition for 36 hours before his death, and the end was momentarily expected since that time. Mrs. Ricker and Mrs. Starring, the Professor's two married daughters, and the immediate members of his family were at the bedside when Dr. Davis pronounced life extinct.

Professor Swing's ancestry is German, coming to this country before the 13 original States had been established. David, the youngest son, was born in Cincinnati, August 23, 1830, his father dying two years later.

When David was 7 years of age, his mother removed to Reedsburg, Ohio, which was the family residence for three years. A settlement was then made on a farm near Williamsburg, where, during the following eight years David was a farmer's boy, and a scholar in the public school. On this farm was laid the foundation for that sturdy manhood and remarkable self poise so noticeable in after years. He studied and taught himself so perfectly that at the age of 18 he entered Miami University at Oxford, Ohio. At this same school were Benjamin Harrison and Whitelaw Reid. Young Swing supported himself by working and teaching school. His intention was to be a lawyer, but the religious element of his mind predominated, and he studied for the Presbyterian ministry. In 1866 Professor Swing accepted the pastorate of the Westminister Presbyterian church in this city. This service was interrupted by the great fire of 1871, which not only swept away his church, but all his personal belongings, leaving him with nothing but the clothes on his back. Within a year his church was rebuilt on the old site. About this time occurred the most important event in the great minister's career—his trial before the Chicago Presbytery on a charge of heresy, preferred by the Rev. Dr. Francis L. Patton, then editor of the Interior, and now president of the Princeton College. These charges, of which there were 28 specifications of lapses from the Presbyterian doctrine, were not sustained, there being 61 members in the Presbytery and only 13 votes against him. But the subsequent feeling was so bitter that Professor Swing brought matters to a close by resigning his pastorate, a large number of his friends going with him and forming the Central church in which Professor Swing has since labored with great success. Professor Swing was a man of broad culture and extensive learning, and his library is one of the best in the West.

A WAR CLOUD.

Serious Complications Between France and Germany.

CABINET COUNCIL SUMMONED.

The Difficulty Arises Over a French Protest Against English Interference in the Madagascar Trouble—War is Not Probable.

London, Oct. 3.—A dispatch to the Daily News from Paris says there is nothing pending between France and England sufficiently grave to justify a scare. Madagascar is the only black spot on the horizon, and, according to Paris opinion, Great Britain ought to restrain her officers from drilling Hova troops or to insist that they quit the British service, but there is no sign of a national paroxysm against England.

WHY FRANCE COMPLAINS.

English Volunteers are Helping the Natives of Madagascar.

London, Oct. 3.—The Central News adheres to its assertion that the summoning of a cabinet council is due to the fact that France has made representations to the British Government concerning England's alleged responsibility for the attitude of the Hova Government in continuing the strenuous opposition to the treaty rights of France in Madagascar. It is also claimed that France has protested against the shipment of munitions of war from England to Madagascar and the enrolment of British subjects in the military service of the Hovas.

It is known that an ex-cavalry officer in the British army has gone out to Madagascar to act as commander-in-chief of the Hova forces, he having taken part in the Hova campaign against the French in Madagascar in 1885. Another British officer has engaged to serve as adjutant general in the Hova army, and hundreds of settlers in South Africa of all nationalities are prepared to join the Hovas in the event of war, they having been offered 5 shillings a day and a plot of land if the Hovas are successful.

The Hova army now consists of two divisions of infantry, well armed and drilled, and the Hova authorities claim that they will be able before January 1 to take the field with 100,000.

Later advices say there is no foundation that the Madagascar ports have been blockaded.

Foreign diplomats regard the situation as hopeful and believe the difficulties will be settled amicably between England and France.

A RUMOR OF WAR.

The British Cabinet Hastilly Summoned to a Council.

New York, Oct. 3.—A dispatch from London says: England is likely to be in the throes of a pretty bad war scare within the next few days, unless undoubted facts prove unexpectedly deceptive. The facts are that the ministers had decided that there was no occasion for them to meet at the council board before the end of the first week in November, when it is customary to hold a cabinet council and decide what announcement of policy shall be made at the Lord Mayor's banquet.

Lord Kimberly, foreign secretary, has been in London occasionally since then and has been much worried with work, but the other ministers have been scattered all over England and the continent of Europe on a long desired holiday. Sir William Harcourt came to London yesterday morning and found everything quiet and departed on the 11 o'clock express en route for Milan, where he intended to spend a few weeks doctoring.

Within three hours after his departure urgent dispatches reached the foreign office and were telegraphed on to Lord Kimberly. Later in the afternoon Lord Kimberly telegraphed to the Downing street officials to convene an emergency cabinet council. Strange to say, the addresses of several ministers who were absent from town were unknown in Downing street. The result was that cabs were soon tearing away to their London homes, to obtain the necessary information.

This having been obtained, telegrams in cipher, summoning the council, were sent to all the absentees. Harcourt and Campbell-Bannerman, minister of war, received their summons in Paris and will return immediately.

To-night long dispatches passed over the Queen's private wire between London and Balmoral. They were still being handled at midnight.

There is no reasonable doubt that another very serious hitch has occurred in the diplomatic negotiations with France relative to Egypt and the West and Central Africa. Possibly fresh trouble also has arisen in connection with Madagascar.

The current talk in official circles to-night is of sensational developments in the French-Russian policy in the far East, but this appears to be conjectural rather than solidly based.

It is more probable that France, encouragel by the recent apparent weakness of the British foreign office, has suddenly sprung a demand upon the government which has staggered even Kimberly, and which if persisted in, will bring about a crisis which may result in war, because Rosebery and his colleagues have almost reached the limit of their complaisance toward France.

PRESS COMMENT.

What the English Newspapers Have to Say of the War Scare.

London, Oct. 3.—All the afternoon papers gravely discuss the hasty summoning of a cabinet council, and it is generally accepted as being connected with some serious difficulty with France.

The Liberal organ, the Westminster Gazette, handles the subject very tenderly, and is evidently anxious not to excite public opinion and thereby embarrass the government. On the other hand the Conservative mouthpieces discuss the matter more fearlessly and warn France against encroaching upon British rights.

The Pall Mall Gazette says: "A crisis which necessitates the convening of a cabinet council must be very sudden, as the ministers were dispersed on their holidays. It is quite possible, however, that propositions have been made to settle the various differences. But, while we recognize the incident admits of favorable interpretation, it is idle to ignore the fact that it is quite possible that the cabinet has been summoned to discuss a new and unexpected cause of friction with France."

The Pall Mall Gazette then refers to the article printed to-day in the Politique Coloniale of Paris, which reflects the views of the minister of the Colonies, M. Delcasse, and which gives, exclusive of the questions of Egypt and Madagascar, a list of 11 outstanding difficulties between France and England, connected with frontier and similar disputes in various African colonies.

The Politique Coloniale, however, says that many of these have practically been settled and that none of them would justify a rupture unless one country was bent upon picking a quarrel with the other, which, the paper adds, is not the case.

The Pall Mall Gazette in spite of this says that the article in the Politique Coloniale is unfriendly to the "verge of discourtesy," adding: "And if it reflects the spirit in which the French ministers intend to discuss the difficulties with England, we may prepare for trouble some time. We do not wish to quarrel with France, but on the other hand, we are indisposed to permit trespassing upon our unquestioned rights. The bullying spirit which tells Frenchmen that they have only to brag and bluff enough to force England to surrender, may easily lead to that belief." The Pall Mall Gazette then continues: "The Daily Chronicle says that war between France and England must be regarded as inconceivable madness; it may be madness but it is not inconceivable. France must be told courteously, but firmly, that we have not the slightest desire to attack or to provoke her, but that if attacked we shall defend ourselves to the last extremity."

The Globe also expresses the belief that the hurried calling of the cabinet council is due to disputes with France, adding: "We believe that there is no ground for public alarm or suspicion. But we cannot surrender any part of England's rights or shirk any part of her duties. Our strained relations with France are not a matter of a day's growth; nor connected entirely with Madagascar. We have points of contact with the French throughout the world and each is possible of having fostered irritation which may easily become strife. It is certain that the tame way in which we have allowed ourselves to be outwitted in the far East during the last year, and the manner in which we have stood by while France partitioned our heritage in Siam, has done much to persuade the more ignorant and hot-headed Frenchmen that England is not so very terrible after all. "We want no panic nor war fevers; but we need the assurance that our interests will be properly safeguarded and our allies protected. The French will find that we shall have a word to say about the Madagascar question before it is settled and Lord Rosebery may rely upon the Unionists to support him loyally and heartily in the interests of the empire."

The above quotations from the leading afternoon papers of this city give a fair idea of the drift of public opinion here and the gravity of the crisis which has caused the calling of a cabinet council for to-morrow.

A Battle in Armenia.

Vienna, Oct. 3.—Advices from Erzerum, Armenia, say that the Turkish and Kurdish soldiery at Sasun have been attacked by the people of that region, and more than 300 of them killed and wounded. The Turkish troops are represented as being in a pitiable condition, their sufferings being greatly increased by the severe weather prevailing.

Late Chinese News.

London, Oct. 3.—The Post publishes a dispatch from Shanghai saying it is reported there that the Chinese soldiers who escaped from Ping Yang have taken a position at Ngan, where they were joined by the troops that were landed on the bank of the Yalu river and by others from the Province of Shunking. They are said to be entrenching themselves, and it is possible that a decisive battle may be fought there.

The Chinese authorities at Shanghai, the dispatch says, made an attempt a day or two ago to arrest a Japanese traveller, who had arrived from Manchuria, on suspicion of his being a spy. The police were informed of the act, and the traveler was turned over the United States consul.

FOR FREE COINAGE.

Ohio Democrats Put Themselves Squarely on Record.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 3.—There was issued from the Democratic State Executive Committee headquarters to-day an address to the voters of Ohio, in which it is declared that the restoration of silver to free coinage is the supreme issue before the people. In the national contest two years ago, the address states, the fight was made by the Democrats for tariff reform and silver restoration. The former was the overshadowing issue then, but the McKinley tariff law being now repealed, the silver coinage question has become paramount. The address is voluminous and in 21 divisions, argues in favor of the abandonment of the single gold standard and the return to the free coinage of silver.

Another Wisconsin Fire.

Grantsburg, Wis., Oct. 3.—Word has been received here that fire swept over the Blackbrood country, 12 miles north of here, burning everything in its path, hundreds of tons of hay, together with other property being destroyed. Some of the buildings were burned. As this section is composed of new settlers, it leaves them in a pitiable condition. An appeal will be made to Governor Peck for aid. A relief committee has been organized.

A Defaulter Arrested.

Lansing, Mich., Oct.—Deputy Secretary of State Lindholm, who absconded with State funds some months ago, and who was arrested in Sweden, was brought back here to-day. He says his defalcation is not over $900, instead of $2,000, as stated, and he can prove it by the office cash books.

WON IN A BOUT.

"Denver" Ed Smith Defeats Farrell in Six Rounds.

CORBETT TAKES A CHALLENGE.

He will Fight Fitzsimmons for the Championship—Races at Chillicothe and at Portland—Directum Wins the Race with Nelson.

Denver, Oct. 3.—A train of six cars with 175 passengers, sporting, professional and business men left the Union depot at 12 o'clock to-day to witness the encounter between "Denver Ed" Smith and Lawrence Farrell, whose real name is William Keogh. Just before starting Farrell was arrested by a deputy sheriff, who it is said had been refused a pass and started for a justice's court, but some of the sporting fraternity induced the deputy to release him. The train stopped at 2:30 about 20 miles out on the Gulf road and the ring was pitched in exactly the same spot where Smith defeated Farrell eight years ago.

The spectators built seats of railroad ties around the ring, which was pitched close to the track. A squad of 15 Denver wheelmen soon arrived, having followed the train out, and their tickets cost them nothing more than an unmerciful guying from those who had been mulcted. Smith weighed in at 180 pounds and Farrel at 170 when they entered the ring at 3 p. m. Smith was first in the ring and was greeted with cheers, followed by his seconds Omer Anderson, Paddy Smith and Joe Mulvihill. Farrell entered presently with Tom West, Billy Thomas and Bat Masterson. Harry Stewart and Jeff alias "Soapy" Smith were chosen as timekeeps and "Reddy" Galagher as referee. Farrell looked very much smaller than "Denver Ed" and the latter was the favorite. Farrel wore black tights and Smith the ones he wore when he defeated Goddard. The gloves weighed five ounces.

First Round—Smith uppercut Farrell, who replied with a will. Smith landed on Farrell's right eye and drew first blood. A clinch followed, Farrell trying to strike Smith. Smith got in a right and left over the heart and Farrell returned the compliment with two on Smith's neck. Smith then fell in a clinch.

Second Round—The men came together with a rush, both leading, Smith playing for Farrell's ribs, Farrell landing on Ed's face. Smith accused Farrell of sticking his elbow in Smith's face. Gallagher cautioned Farrell but he continued to jab at Ed after each clinch was broken. Neither had any advantage in the round.

Third Round—Smith led landing on the face and got a hard one on the ribs. Both men were puffing and clinched frequently. Smith led suddenly and landed three blows on Farrell's face in one, two, three style. Farrell jabbed his elbow in Ed's face again and was cautioned. Then Farrell got in several body blows on Smith. Neither man's round.

Fourth Round—Smith led for Farrell's neck and landed hard; foul was claimed against Farrell again for his elbow trick; again cautioned. Then he caught Smith a stunning blow on the chin. A rush and clinch next. Farrell was told he would lose the fight if he made another foul. A foul then claimed against Smith but not allowed. Both men seemed short-winded and too fat.

Fifth Round—Smith chased Farrell twice around the ring and after a clinch Ed. landed twice on Farrell's windpipe. Farrell was again warned and he gave Gallagher two good ones on the ribs mistaking him for "Denver Ed." Smith got in two on Farrell's face, who clinched and threw Smith. Another foul claimed.

Sixth Round—Farrell led and landed on breast and wrestled Smith again, who fell. Farrell claimed Ed. held his glove in his mouth and he could not help it. Another clinch and Farrell again threw Smith. On the claim of another foul Gallagher gave the fight to Smith, but withdrew his decision immediately, saying he would give Smith the fight on the next foul. He did not wait long for Farrell instantly fouled Smith and threw him over the ropes. Smith wanted to finish the fight, but his friends persuaded him not to.

The train was started in a few minutes. While some were inclined to think the fight something on the fake order the majority were well pleased with their excursion.

CHANGED HIS MIND.

Corbett Now Declares His Willingness to Pound Fitsimmons.

New York, Oct. 3.—The Evening Telegram this evening prints the following: James J. Corbett has changed his mind about fighting "Bob" Fitzsimmons for the championship of the world. He has overcome his objection to meeting a middleweight and has announced his intention of covering Fitzsimmons' money, now held by the sporting editor of the Herald, and he will be in the city to make the match one week from to-morrow.

Corbett communicated this information to a prominent sporting man this afternoon, who said: "Corbett will go into this match against my judgment. I furnished part of the stake money for his fight with Sullivan, but I deplore his action in meeting a middleweight. It will add nothing to his prestige if he beats Fitzsimmons, and it is a big chance. However, he knows best what he wishes to do."

Corbett's action in receding from the position he assumed Monday is a great surprise to his friends and enemies alike.

Fitzsimmons Gets the News.

Derby, Conn., Oct. 3.—Fitzsimmons has received a telegram from the editor of The Herald stating that Corbett had covered the money at The Herald office. Fitzsimmons was about as much pleased at the news as a boy with his first pair of pants. He said he would meet Corbett at The Herald office on Oct. 11, to sign an agreement and would do all he could to force Corbett into signing. He says he is willing to make any reasonable sacrifices to bring on the fight. He will fight in February or after Corbett's theatrical season ends. He prefers fighting before the Olympic club, but will fight anywhere, for any sum, and under almost any conditions.

Dempsey Chips In.

New Orleans Oct. 3.—The following letter has been sent to the sporting editor of the daily Item, and will not be made public before to-morrow evening: Dear Sir: Judging from the tone of Mr. Fitzsimmons' letter in the morning papers, I take it for granted that he has relinquished the title of middleweight champion. If this be so, I hold myself ready to defend that title. I will meet any man in the world at 154 pounds, and as a token of good faith, I deposit in your hands the enclosed check for $2,500.

JOHN E. DEMPSEY.

Directum a Winner.

Portland, Maine, Oct. 3.—At Rigby Park this afternoon all admirers of Nelson were forced to admit that he is no match for Directum. The contest settled all doubts as to their relative superiority. The weather was cloudy and cold, making the attendance rather small for so great a race. At a little after 2 o'clock the two great stallions came on the track together. Directum was driven by Hiskok and Horace Nelson held the reins over his horse, named after him.

Nelson drew the pole, and after scoring twice, got the word on the third trial. In spite of a breeze, the race was fast from the very first. Nelson led at the first quarter in 31½, also at the half in 103½, and three-quarters in 135¾, with Directum right at his wheels all the way. Then the little black stallion began to creep up, and down the home stretch gained faster and faster, passing under the wire a length ahead of Nelson in 2:10. This was the result looked for, it being conceded that Directum would gain on the home stretch.

In the third heat Directum was allowed to show what he could do. Nelson was at his wheel the first half of the heat, but then Directum drew a length ahead. At the third quarter Directum led by four lengths, and when the wire was reached Nelson was so far behind that his driver had slowed him down and he trotted in on a mere amble, as thoroughly beaten as possible. When Directum's time for this last heat was announced as 2:08¼ there was great cheering. This breaks all previous records for stallion trotting races.

Directum took the three straight heats, the second being run very evenly until near the wire, when the black shot out and won the heat by a length in 2:13¼.

Races at Chillicothe.

Chillicothe, Ohio, Oct. 3.—The weather again favored the third day of the races and a crowd of 3,000 turned out to witness the afternoon's sport, which was of a very high character. In the unfinished 2:21 trot of yesterday, Bourbon Wilkes, Jr., won the heat and race in 2:14¾, closely pushed by Mambrino Queen, who won second money. In the 2:27 trot Lena Holley won the race after a desperate struggle of six heats. The 2:11 trot was a magnificent struggle between Phoebe Wilkes and Don Cupid both horses breaking their records in their efforts to land first money. Phoebe Wilkes reduced her record from 2:10¼ to 2:09¼, and Don Cupid lowered his record from 2:11¾ to 2:09½, both made at Terre Haute. Phoebe Wilkes finally won the race.

Hill Has Nothing to Say.

New York, Oct. 3.—It was reported in Ithaca, N. Y., that a Democratic politician there had received a dispatch saying that Senator Hill had decided to decline the nomination for Governor.

Senator Hill was een at the Hotel Normandie to-night by a United Press reporter, and asked if there was any truth in the report. He answered: "I have absolutely nothing to say."

Returns from Connecticut.

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 3.—Complete returns from the 164 towns in the State that elected town officers Monday have been received by the Hartford Courant. The Republicans have gained 22 towns over 1893, and the Democrats have lost 18, four towns of the Republican gain coming from the so-called Divided towns. A total of five more towns vote no license this year than last. The women's vote has fallen off 700 from about 3,700 to 3,000.

BOTTOM RULED OUT.

McClees Says His Nomination was Deficient in Law.

Denver, Oct. 3.—This afternoon Secretary of State McClees passed on the contested nomination of John T. Bottom, the Democratic nominee for Congress from the First district, declaring that the nomination was deficient on its face, as it did not comply with the law in reciting that either of the parties consolidated and did not carry 10 per cent of the total vote of the last election.

GEORGIA ELECTIONS.

Democrats Win by a Plurality of About Thirty Thousand.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 3. A lighter vote was polled in the State election to-day than was cast two years ago. The Democratic ticket was elected by a majority estimated at 30,000. Atkinson, Democrat, for Governor, ran behind his ticket. Many old soldiers either scratched Atkinson or voted for Hines, Populist.

Fulton County, outside of Atlanta, went for the Populist ticket. The Democratic ticket elected is as follows: Governor, William Y. Atkinson; secretary of State, Allen D. Candler; treasurer, Robert U. Hardeman; attorney general, Jos. M. Terrel; comptroller general, William A. Wright; commissioner of agriculture, Robert T. Nesbitt.

Miners' Strike Imminent.

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 3.—A strike of the miners operating machines in Ohio is imminent. The machine scale has never been adjusted to the new scale adopted in the great strike settlement last June. The long established rule has been to pay for machine mining three-fifths of the price of pick mining, but machine miners are now paid about 5 cents per ton less than this. A mass meeting of miners at Jobs, Ohio, yesterdpay resolved to strike if the machine operators had not proposed a satisfactory scale by the end of the week.

The First Snow.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 3.—The thermometer fell fast here to-day, and toward evening there was a light flurry of snow, the first of the season. There was a chilling rain all day.

LONDON LETTER.

THINGS POLITICAL, SOCIAL AND SPORTY.

The Evicted Tenants' Bill—The Dunmow Flitch—Yachts and Yachtsmen—A Royal Marriage—Baseball in England—Scenery and Advertising—The Cabmen's Strike.

London, Sept. 15, 1894.

There have been many bills before the House of Commons since the "Irish Home Rule bill" was thrown out by the House of Lords, but no measure since that famous bill has aroused anything like the interest that the "Evicted Tenants bill" (Weland) has. Public excitement and strong party feeling have been created and the newspapers have taken up the question hotly. The pith of the bill brought in by "Honest John" Morley is as follows: Clause 1 provides, "that where the tenancy of a holding in Ireland has been determined since the first of May, 1879, the former tenant of holding, or his personal représentative, may, within one year after the commencement of this act, petition the arbitrators to be reinstated as tenant." The bill goes to say that the landlord may appeal against the arbitrators' order, that the former tenant be reinstated, and if he can show good cause that he be not reinstated then the arbitrators shall decide against the tenant, but if the former tenant's explanation be satisfactory and the landlord cannot prove otherwise then the tenant will be reinstated, "and that the rent shall be the former rent, subject to a fair rent being fixed in pursuance of the Irish land act of 1881."

The progress of the bill through the Commons has been tempestuous. Mr. Morley honestly believes the bill to be a just and necessary one and he has been stoutly supported by the members of the Liberal party. They argue thusly: "Many of the former tenants were harshly evicted. They had small holdings for which a rack rent was charged and the landlords refused to lower such rents, and many of them improved almost bare pieces of ground into comfortable plots with decent cottages, fences, outhouses and fittings upon them. They also cultivated the ground as well as the soil would allow. These men were turned away from the work of years, and ruined." The Liberals think, therefore, that these unfortunate men and their families should be again put into possession, as long as they can prove their claims to be good.

The leaders of the Conservative and Unionist parties, Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain, and their followers, say that the bill is monstrous and unjust. They argue "that the former tenants were evicted for breaking the law—and other people's heads, i. e., refusing to pay rent and resisting the constabulary, and that they are expected to reward these people for lawlessness by turning out respectable tenants who pay their rent and who are also working improvements and have been doing so for years."

The debates were warm from the outset, and Mr. Morley and Mr. Balfour engaged in many a wordy duel. They picked each other to pieces considerably, but both are sound politicians and although they took every advantage of any weakness and at times spoke very strongly, neither descended to abuse. Mr. Chamberlain, as usual, embittered the party feeling considerably, slashing from left to right and never sparing an opponent. He was particularly bitter towards the Irish party and stirred up their hot blood with copious references to bloody scenes past and gone. The Irishmen were not slow to take up the gage thus thrown down and the Speaker had his hands full. The debate went on and amendment followed amendment in rapid succession. Then Sir William Vernon Harcourt rose one morning and smilingly addressed the House. "He was really very sorry to inconvenience the gentlemen on the other side of the house, but as it appeared to him that amendments were being advanced for the purpose of obstruction, he, after due consideration and with great regret, had decided to apply the closure!" The effect of this announcement was electrical and the rage of the Coservatives and delight of the Irish party was great. Mr. Balfour declared that to apply the closure to such a vital measure was to tie the tongue of criticism and as they were not to be allowed to fully discuss the question, he and his followers had come to the conclusion that their presence in the House was unnecessary. The next two or three days' debate presented curious scenes, the majority of the Conservatives and Unionists being absent and the few in the House taking no part in the discussions. The remaining business passed rapidly and after a last exciting day's debate when the Conservatives attended once more and two speeches—the one cynical and scathing from Mr. Chamberlain's acid tongue, and the other passionate, from Mr. O'Brien, the bill finally passed the House of Commons.

The move on the part of Balfour & Co. is clear. The House of Lords are unlikely to pass the bill in any case and are doubly sure to reject it now it has not been fully discussed. Next week the cry will once more go up, "Down with the Peers."

The Dunmow Flitch.

There are many curious old customs kept up in different parts of our little island. One of these is known as the "Dunmow Flitch." Dunmow is a small country town in Essex and the event was celebrated last week. One or more couples make application to receive the flitch of bacon. To succeed, they must prove that for a year and a day "they have been as turtle doves and have not had a single cross word pass between them (oh! shade of Ananias!), and also that they have led a happy and peaceable life since the day that Mr. Clergyman made them one. A prominent townsman is judge this year he was an auctioneer and the jury consists of six fair maidens with the same number of bachelors to keep them company. A mock counsel represents the couples and the "Dunmow attorney" opposes. On this occasion the jury could not decide between the couples and they awarded each a flitch of bacon. The husband of one couple was an Essex man and his wife was Irish. "Tell me," questioned the Dunmow attorney severely, "have you ever had any arguments on the 'home rule' question?" "Order!" cried the judge; "that is not a fair question. Is it not clear that there has been no occasion?" And the Dunmow attorney inquired no more.

Yachts and Yachtsmen.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, has been en fete and the meeting has been quite international this past week. The visitors included the Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Empress of Germany, the Duke of York, Mr. Gould and many distinguished English, French, German and American visitors. A great deal of powder has been expended. First, the guns greeted the Prince of Wales, then salutations were exchanged when the beautiful white German ironclad, Hollernzollern, steamed into Cowes. Then the American man-o'-war's guns boomed as the stately Chicago anchored next to Mr. Gould's steam yacht. The German and English boats replied and the Chicago manned yards. The officers have exchanged visits and cordiality and good fellowship has ruled supreme. The German Emperor is an honorary English admiral and is very proud of the honor. He is an autocrat—this important young man and is very expert in matters nautical. He often works the helm on board his yacht, Meteor, but his boat has but little chance against those glorious flyers, the Britannia and Vigilant. Puzzle: Which is the boat? The question of supremacy is a hard one to solve. The Vigilant wins the £100 prize one day and the Britannia reverses the decision in the race for the Cowes cup. Anyway, they can both beat the Deutcher. Therefore, "Rule Britannia, and likewise Yankee Doodle!"

A Royal Marriage.

The announcement is made that Prince Adolphus of Teck will be married to Lady Margaret Grosvenor in December next. Prior to Princess May's marriage with Prince George of Wales the Tecks were not of much account. However, dear old Duchess of Teck, whose good nature and vast proportions are proverbial, having married her daughter to the future King of England, thought she had done pretty well and cast her eyes round for a suitable girl for Adolphus. Anyhow "Dolly" has chosen well, as the Duke of Grosvenor is vastly wealthy and the Tecks are almost pennyless. The Duke of Grosvenor is very proud of his wealth and his rank and is only too pleased to give his consent. Prince Adolphus is good looking and genial and the Lady Margaret is very beautiful. The Duchess of Teck has gone one better, but has two more tricks to trump yet, as her other two nice-looking boys are not engaged, and money must be obtained for them by hook or by crook.

Baseball in England.

A. A. Zimmerman is a great favorite over here and received a big reception on his first appearance on English soil this season. On the Hearn Hill track he lowered the British record for a quarter-mile, on Saturday, riding the distance in 30 4-5 seconds. He fell when looking all over a winner in the 5-mile race, but was not badly injured. Zimmy makes a lot of money, as he is a big "draw" and his attendance is worth a big fee. Beside he receives retainers from the maker of the machine he rides and the firm who supplies the tires.

Londoners are great sportsmen and every branch of sport has a chance. We are ardent cricketers and footballers; we are devoted to rowing and excel at swimming; we play lawn tennis to perfection and golf enthusiastically; in fact, all sports have the season, even lacrosse and baseball. This latter game has had to struggle very hard to get a footing, and it is largely due to a team composed mostly of actors and calling themselves "Thespians," that the game is at last creating some impression. The Thespians have won the championship this year before a large audience. One of their number is Mr. R. G. Knowles, who is a sterling player and one of the popular favorites on the Music Hall stage. He calls himself the "very peculiar American comedian."

Scenery and Advertising.

What a shame it is that we cannot put down the hideous advertisements that desecrate our scenery—both in America and England. Travelers from New York to the Niagara Falls cannot but be impressed with the fact that children do actually cry for Pitcher's castoria, or that Hood's sarsaparilla is good for that tired feeling, whilst we on this side can make no mistake about Beecham's pills being worth a guinea a box. There are other patent medicines and soaps and things, all better than anything else for everything! We know it because we see it instead of our fields, in the place of fences, and taking the positions that we associate trees and beautiful bushes with. At Teddington on the river Thames, a most delightful green spot, there has risen from the water a huge bottle that champion's someone's sauce. It is a crying shame such puffs should be allowed and who would blame the people who lowered it during the night and watched it floating serenely down the river on its way to the sea!

The London season is over and town is very empty and business is of course dull all around. The weather has been fairly good and not excessively hot. Hideous mixture of color has been the most noticable thing in the fashionable world, one noted society dame appearing in the "Row" (Hyde Park) in a beautiful and not to say artistic dress composed of green, yellow and pink! City men are wearing straw hats in the place of "toppers" much more than formerly and derbys or "bowlers," as they are called here, are quite out of court. We have been on the verge of a cab strike, but the awful event has been averted by the Home Secretary, Mr. Asquith, who has acted as mediator. There are thousands of cabs in London and thousands of people who travel by them and them only. Whatever would the poor dudes do? Get on a plebeian bus? perish the thought! The underground railway would never do; far too dirty, and walk, and soil those pretty boots? that they could not countenance. It is impossible to imagine a solution of such a trying situation, and we must wait—like the cab strike, until it comes off.

A Thousand Dollars Reward

Alamosa, Colo., Oct. 2, 1894.—The Independent-Journal Publishing company has deposited the sum of $1,000 with the First National Bank of Alamosa, Colo., to be given as a reward to any person or persons, who will produce the proof that Hon. Albert W. McIntire, Republican nominee for Governor, is a member of Chapter 25, A. P. A., or is, or ever has been a member of the A. P. A. organization of Colorado or any other State.

This reward is offered for the reason that the Denver News declared what it knew to be false when it made the editorial statement that Mr. McIntire was a member of Chapter 25, A. P. A., of Denver.

M. D. MIX, President.

All who are interested in gymnastic work are asked to paste the following date in their hats, Oct. 6, from 8 to 10 p. m.; at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The occasion is the fall opening of the regular gymnasium work and an informal reception to the new physical director, Mr. E. F. Hutchinson. All young men are cordially invited, especially those not at present members. Music and refreshments will form a part of the attractions.

ARMY OF THE TENNESSEE.

The Annual Meeting of the Society Held at Council Bluffs.

Council Bluffs, Iowa, Oct. 3.—The Society of the Army of the Tennessee held its annual meeting in this city to-day. About 75 members were present, and the meeting was very spirited. All the morning session reports were heard, and several committees appointed. In the afternoon the veterans headed by the Second Infantry band marched to the residence of Gen. Dodge, where a public reception was held. Gen. Dodge was assisted in receiving by Mrs. John A. Logan and her niece and several other ladies.

To-night a public meeting was held at the Dohany Theater, at which Mayor Clever on behalf of the city, and Governor Jackson, on behalf of the State, delivered addresses of welcome, to which Gen. Dodge responded. After a short address of welcome, Mayor Clever introduced Governor Jackson, who spoke as follows:

Mr. President, and Members of the Army of the Tennessee:—Iowa bids welcome and good cheer to all Union soldiers and especially does she pay loving tribute to the Society of the Army of the Tennessee.

Age brings its compensations of joy and pleasure, as well as its burdens of care and sorrow. The joy of personal greetings on this occasion and the pleasure of this meeting makes radiant this day by the brightness of the sunshine of memories. Yet we must recognize that the brighter the rays of our happy sun, the denser and darker are the shadows. The burning passions of war have been utilized by you to melt the armor of hate and mold it into living friendly tokens of peace, charity and love, bright as the pages of your history, lasting as our national existence.

In no country but our own, in no time until this generation, in no fraternity but the Society of the Army of the Tennessee could such a spectacle of patriotism, crowned by the laurel of national majesty, be presented.

Here are heroes; here are men gathered as a brotherhood; men who have by their leadership and the steadfast courage of the Union volunteer the private soldier, carved their names forever in the military annals of their country and many of them have ennobled our national peace by the impress of their lives upon the civil history.

This fraternity must grow dearer to you with each recurring year and as you look to your first meeting away back in the Senate chamber of that Confederate city almost thirty years ago, the shadows fall about you thick and dense, for memory has its storehouse filled while hope has little to offer. This society, this organization was conceived by comrade minds in the smoke of battle. It was born mid the roar of the thundering guns of victory. It was christened on the triumphant march and all under a flag, the silken folds of which proclaim then as now one country for one people and equal rights before the law.

The brightness of the present is illumined by your deeds of glory and those of you here to-night can live days and weeks in the inspiring words of old commanders, in every word a picture, in every voice a poem, in every sentence an incident, in every form a stage on which was enacted the prowess of courage and the display of unselfish valor reproducing the most stirring scenes ever witnessed by mortal eye or carved by the sword of war. Time, less cruel than arts of war, wages its silent battle with unrelenting vigor. While many of the arts of war have been obliterated, where nature held full sway, yet time has year by year cut still deeper the furrows in your faces, bent the military bearing, silvered the hair of youth to the fitting accompaniment of age and thought. Yet time has been partial to you, and in this great honor I have of bidding you welcome to our loyal state, amid the surroundings of this patriotic city of Council Bluffs, I implore that Providence, which rules us all, that time may gently flood your ways with the light and sunshine of happiness and love, to a late ending in the bonds of eternal peace. Most sincerely does the great State of Iowa, in the name of its entire population, bid me give you cordial welcome. Welcome, in the name of its 75,000 gallant soldiers and in the name of more than half a million loyal mothers. Welcome in the name of its surviving veterans. Welcome in the name of those who from Iowa fought in your ranks with valor unsurpassed. Welcome in the priceless memory of those who fell in battle. Welcome in the saddest of a home's desolation—the memory of loved occupants of an unknown grave. Standing in this presence here to-night I can read in your faces your deep reflections, the shadows of unusual sadness, the memory of many who have gone before. Of your first members, Rollins and Blair; the treasured memory of your gallant McPherson; that great volunteer general, the idol of his followers, the loved of his command, the unsurpassed soldier and statesman, John A. Logan. Yes, and Thomas, too, while the waters of Lake Michigan still sound their thunders without awakening the intrepid Sheridan who was of you and from you. The hand of time has gathered from your circle one who was a leading spirit in all your deliberations. He who broke the fetters of distance, and by his genius of leadership and your enduring valor made the impossible a task of easy accomplishment; his shadow is on your faces here this evening, and it is the darkness of night in the thought of the eternal absence from your society of that great military character and imperishable hero, General William T. Sherman.

Yet there is another. From the quiet hamlet of Illinois, when treason drew its sword and flashed defiance to the nation's life, there came one who carried a heart of love cased in impenetrable walls of steel; one who felt no hatred but closed his master grip upon the standard of the stars and planted it upon the pinnacle of military achievements; placed peace upon a pedestal that can never be undetermined, and by the arts of war and administrations of peace, made national unity as lasting as time itself. This quiet man was the first commander of the Army of the Tennessee, and this army under his guidance was the first to bring hope to the heart of the loyal North for the final triumph of our flag. This man who wrote at Donnelson "No terms except unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted. I propose to move immediately upon your works" by your valor wrote the name of the Army of the Tennessee in immortal characters of living life. Linked immortally with your own history, a nation shall ever praise Almighty God for that fervent and uncomplaining patriot and statesman, U. S. Grant. He loved you, he was proud of you and your achievements. When in 1866 he wrote to your society of his inability to be present at your meeting, he called the attention of the world to a historical fact that shall forever stand as your proudest enduring moment. He said: "It is a proud record the Army of the Tennessee gained during the rebellion. As an army it never sustained a single defeat during the four years of war. No officer was ever assigned to the command who had afterwards to be relieved from duty or reduced to a less command. Such a history is not by accident, nor wholly due to sagacity in the selection of commanders." Thus the lasting tribute of this immortal general is paid not alone to the officers, but the invincible rank and file of that ever victorious army, the Army of the Tennessee.

In the name of Iowa and its people, in the name of national love and a lasting peace, I bid you welcome to Iowa.

A HYGIENIC HADES.

The Vapor Baths at Glenwood Spring, Colorado.

A simple-minded old soldier, who served under Fremont the Path-finder, returned to his native town in the East a good many years ago, and told a plain unvarnished tale of the wonders he had seen in the Yosemite valley and other wild regions on the Pacific slope. By simply telling the truth this gray old fighting-man earned the reputation of being the biggest liar in all the country around.

Anyone who travels through the valley of the Grand river in western Colorado, and tells of what he saw there, runs the same risk. What can a man expect who says he took a half-hour's swim in midwinter all unprotected from a howling snow storm, and afterwards descended into the bowels of the earth and took a vapor bath, the raw (or cooked) materials of which came straight from Tophet, or thereabouts? Yet these are the every-day humdrum incidents in the lives of the people of Grand river valley.

A black and turbid river flows from between frowning cliffs; through its icy waters bubble springs of water hot from the fires below. Sulphurous fumes are povided for you as you approach the little door in the mountain side near the river. It is a trifle disappointing to find the gate-keeper seated on a cane-bottom chair, but after he has told you a few stories you feel that he is the right man in the right place.

He has a tale of a man addicted to the excessive use of tobacco, who went into this hygienic hades clothed only in its vapors, and came out in a full suit of nicotine. Thick doors separate compartments, gradually increasing in temperature, until you are ushered into a cavern filled with a driving vapor that winds about you in steaming folds. As your eyes grow used to the ghostly shifting light you see the forms of half-naked men, some sitting, many lying in hollows of the rocks; they seem to quiver in the winding mists that envelop them like objects in a mirage.

After the visitor becomes parboiled he is permitted to return to the door and cool himself gradually in one compartment after another. Resuming the conventional garb of the tourist, he looks up once more at the stars, and is thankful that he went in at the gate where they charge admission.—(From Harper's Weekly.

Transmississippi Congress.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—The next session of the Trans-Mississippi Commercial congress will convene in St. Louis, on invitation of the Merchants Exchange of this city, on Monday, Nov. 26, 1894, and will probably continue four days. This date has been selected with the special view of securing the attendanee of Western members of the United States Congress en route to Washington for the reassembling of that body.

The territory embraced in the representation to the congress includes all States and Territories lying west of the Mississippi river, and those small portions of Louisiana and Minnesota which lie east of it.

The object of the congress is to discuss all questions affecting the interests of the people in the foregoing territory, which may be the subject of legislation by the United States Congress, and to express to it, through resolutions and otherwise, the sentiments of the Western people. It will also endeavor to take such steps for the presentation of these resolutions to that body, as will command its attention and action.

While any such question may properly be brought forward for discussion, among those which are most likely to be prominent are: The remonetization of silver; irrigation of arid and other lands; the disposition of Indian and public lands; the Nicaragua canal: a national bankrupt law; the improvement of Western rivers and harbors; anti-option legislation; mining laws; admission of Territories to Statehood.

The Governor of each State and Territory may appoint ten delegates.

Each county is entitled to one delegate, to be appointed by its commsssioners of judges.

The Mayor of each city may appoint one delegate, and an additional delegate for every 10,000 population, provided however, that not more than ten delegates shall be thus appointed from any one city.

Each commercial body, or business organization, may appoint three delegates, and one additional delegate for each 100 members.

Ex-presidents of the congress, Governors of States and Territories west of the Mississippi river, and all members of the United States Congress are ex-officio delegates, with all the privileges of appointed delegates, except those of voting and election to office.

NINE KINDS OF PEOPLE.

Indians, Agriculture, Sociology and Hot Springs In South Dakota.

[Special Correspondence.]

SPRINGFIELD, S. D., Oct. 2.—The prospective opening of our last Indian reservation—that is, the last this side of the high plains and arid mountain regions—has created the usual stir among border boomers, but it is well to say to those farther east that there is no call to get excited, for at the outside there are not more than 175,000 acres to be had, and those are to be sold at $3.75 per acre, besides the $5 in fees. Furthermore, the Indians retain nearly twice as much as they give up and will have it allotted in severalty and inalienable and untaxable for 25 years. So the settler will have untaxed Indians for neighbors, and those Indians getting almost enough from the United States to support them besides what they can realize by leasing their lands.

"It will be fun for the boys," is what experienced old hands say, meaning that traders of various kinds will get the swag, for, though the government by long experience has learned how to make laws which seem stringent enough to protect Indians, the border sharps have had an equally long experience and can steer around the most obstructive constitutional provisions and knock the bullseye out of the most explicit statute. The experience of these Indians since the Americans first treated with them in 1825 is a sort of tragic comedy, and it now looks as if the Yanktons were to practically illustrate their name, which means "at the end." The policy for 50 years or more was thus tersely set forth by Dr. Burleigh, a jovial agent of our early territorial times: "We have met the Injuns, and what was theirs is ours."

Now, consider, ye who think the Indians have been "robbed of their lands," that these Yanktons—and there never were more than 3,000 of them—since their first treaty have received $2,820,000 in gratuities: that by this last treaty they receive $100,000 cash and for the next 25 years $9,500 in cash semiannually, besides $12,000 for schools and the $15,000 per year for 15 years to come which they are entitled to under the treaty of 1850. Besides all this the government is now issuing rations, setting up shops and buying tools out of pure benevolence to an amount yearly determined by congress. But this is only a beginning. Of the reserved land every man, woman and child in the tribe will have a farm of nearly a quarter section untaxable for 25 years, and those who do not want to farm it can lease to white men and live at their ease as landlords. Indeed this is considered a great advantage for the white settler, as he can have his own land on fee and his Indian neighbor's on a long lease.

It is first rate land, too, none better in Dakota. The soil is a black alluvial, from one to four feet deep, and the subsoil a sort of calcareous marly clay, which retains moisture wonderfully, thus making it possible to grow crops in spite of drought. The reservation is in Charles Mix county, and the farmers living on its borders tell wonderful stories about their big crops.

The official report gives the yield per acre averaged, as wheat, 28 bushels; oats, 56; corn, 62; barley, 54, and potatoes, 150, which is big enough in all conscience to call for exaggeration. Everything gains in the telling, however, in this country, and you would insult the average farmer of Charles Mix if you told him his land could be made to yield no more than that. In truth, the chief social charm of this country is that every settler is pleased with his own patch, though very many of them "would sell at a fair price."

If these Yanktons succeed in sticking to their locations, there will of course arise here a community of civilized Indians and mixed people, for young whites will marry Indian girls with good farms, and then this tier of counties will present a fine ethnological field—nine kinds of people—from the Big Sioux to the Wyoming line. Over about Sioux Falls and below are Yankees thoroughly westernized, with very liberal ideas on divorce and some other things. Next to the west are Scandinavians, Germans, etc., then a new variety of Yankees, and so on to the Hutterische Mennonites in this county. They are communists and a queer lot, but of course such a community as that cannot be permanent in this country. The attrition of a free society will wear it away, then some more foreigners and Yankees, our Indians next, and the hunters and ranchers, miners, etc., all the rest of the way. It will take smart politicians to keep on top in such a mixture. The Yanktons will vote now they have citizenized and taken lands in severalty. But they have that kind here and are raising lots of 'em.

They have also discovered the long sought for fountain of perpetual youth in Fall River county, and that is fast bringing 60 or 70 more sorts of people—that is, if one counts the varieties of physical wreckage. The above phrase may be a slight exaggeration, but in very truth the waters of the hot springs do work wonders—remove wrinkles, cure gout, rheumatism and skin eruptions and incidentally restore manhood. The world is just finding out what a wonderful place that is. A city of perhaps 2,500 people has grown up there. The finest kind of hotels, churches and schools, besides the Old Soldiers' home, are there, and it is taken as a matter of course that in a few years that is to be the Saratoga of the mountains. It is charged that the Cheyenne Indians bathed there for their health for ages, but the charge is not proved, and statements about Indians bathing should not be received on light testimony.

This brings me back by natural and easy stages to our newly citizenized Yanktons. They are tolerably clean, many of them have learned to work, the girls make fairly good houseservants, all have had good religious training, and many of the young are well educated. Will they keep on in "the white man's road," and what ticket will they vote this fall?

When the Nose Bleeds.

When the nose bleeds, a surgeon advises that the patient should sit with his or her feet in very hot water. This plan he has found effective. In any case, to lean with the head over a basin, in the very position to favor bleeding, is entirely wrong. Better far make the patient lie down, with the head flat, and plug the nostrils with cotton wool dipped in hazeline, and pinch or exercise pressure on the nose, just at its root near the forehead. A cold sponge applied to the nape of the neck is also a good remedy, supplanting the old fashioned "doorkey down the back."—New York Dispatch.

St. Louis's New Depot.

The new Union Station, St. Louis, now completed, is the largest and handsomest structure of the kind in America, even in the world. It is occupied by 21 different railroad companies, operating over 300 trains daily, in and out. Over the Wabash line alone are handled 28 trains, of which 20 are through, the bulk of the Wabash suburban business being handled from its Olive Street station to relieve the Union Station tracks. The new station has a frontage of two city blocks on Market between Eighteenth and Twentieth streets, and a depth of three blocks; the dimensions, roughly stated, being 600x800 feet. The location is exceptionally convenient, close to the business center, and connected by electric street railways with all parts of the city. The new station is a model of architectural beauty, the general effect being massive and imposing. The lofty tower, 250 feet in height, is particularly striking and can be seen for miles in every direction. Broad, inclined walks lead to the main entrance, which opens into the general waiting room. This superb apartment has a floor area of over 10,000 square feet, with a high arched ceiling, and is magnificently decorated. The gentlemen's waiting room, ladies' waiting room, dining hall, smoking room and matron's room are all on the same sumptuous scale. The walls are of enameled brick tiling, the ceilings of oak, with gold trimmings, and the floors of marble.

Wide stairways on either side of the main entrance lead directly from the waiting rooms and entrance to a glass-covered traverse or promenade plaform below. This promenade platform is called "The Midway," and is separated from the main train shed and platforms by an iron fence, through whose sliding gates passengers are admitted when their train is in readiness to receive them. The train shed is 601 feet wide and 700 feet long, and contains 30 separate tracks. It is covered with a single span roof, there being four rows of pillars for intermediate supports.

The baggage, express and mail rooms extend along either side of the train shed and can be reached by vehicles from Eighteenth and Twentieth streets. Ample provision for the exit of incoming passengers has been made, and the whole structure is as complete and perfect as brains, experience and over one million and a half of dollars can make it. The architects were Messrs. Theodore C. Link and Edward A. Cameron of St. Louis, Mo.

THE TRANSLATION OF A SAVAGE.

Lambert sighed. "Poor Frank! Poor devil!" he said almost beneath his breath.

"And wherefore poor Frank? Do you think none of the Armours of Greyhope are the only ones at stake in this? What about this poor girl? Just think how, [illegible] if our suspicions [illegible] imagine her feelings [illegible] wakes to the truth over there, as some time she is sure to do!"

Then Lambert began to see the matter in a different light, and his sympathies for [illegible] Armour grew less as his pity for the girl increased. In fact, [illegible] before the boat got to Southampton [illegible] Armour more than once [illegible] reception of Frank's Indian wife by her white relatives.

[illegible] at a certain [illegible] a day or two before [illegible] more anxious. It was the custom at breakfast for Mrs. Armour to open her husband's letters and read them while he was engaged with his newspaper and hand to him afterward those that were important. This morning Marion noticed a letter from Frank among the pile and without a word pounced upon it. She was curious, as any woman would be, to see how he took Miss Sherwood's action. Her father was deep in his paper at the time; her mother was reading other letters. Marion read the first few lines with a feeling of almost pain and wonder; the words were so callous, cynical and cold.

Richard at the opposite side, who was engaged with his paper, but chancing to glance up, saw that she was becoming very pale and that the letter trembled in her fingers. Being a little short-sighted, he was not near enough to see the handwriting. He did not speak yet. He watched. Presently, seeing her grow more excited, he touched her foot under the table. She closed the letter, caught his eye, smiled slightly. She gave him a warning look and turned away from her mother. Then she went on reading to the bitter end. Presently a little cry escaped her against her will. At that her mother looked up, but she only saw her daughter's back as she rose hurriedly from the table, saying that she would return in a moment. Mrs. Armour, however, had been startled. She knew that Marion had been reading a letter, and with a mother's instinct her thoughts were instantly upon Frank. She spoke quickly, almost sharply: "Marion, come here!"

Richard had risen. He came round the table, and as the girl obeyed her [illegible] took the letter from her fingers and [illegible] over it. Mrs. Armour [illegible] to her daughter, [illegible] said, "There is [illegible] wrong with Frank. What is it?"

[illegible] Armour was now looking up [illegible] [illegible] laugh, [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] She was [illegible] At the first [illegible]—or [illegible]—had [illegible] to this. She [illegible] of [illegible]. She was not very philosophical. Besides she was not married, and what Captain Vidal [illegible] possible [illegible] of this heathenish [illegible] was not a cheerful thought to her.

She choked down a sob and waved her hand toward Richard to answer for her. He was pale, too, but cool. He understood the case instantly. He made up his mind instantly also as to what ought to be—must be—done.

"Well, mother," he said, "it is about Frank. But he is all right—that is, he is alive and well in body. But he has arranged a hateful little embarrassment for us. He is married."

"Married!" said his mother faintly. "Oh, poor Lady Agnes!"

Marion smiled a little viciously at this.

"Married! Married!" said his father. "Well, what about it, eh? What about it?"

The mother wrung her hands. "Oh, I know it's something dreadful—dreadful! He has married somebody dreadful—[illegible] person or something."

Richard, [illegible] as he was, remained [illegible] "Well," [illegible] Frank [illegible] she is [illegible]"

[illegible] "Good God!" [illegible] General Armour [illegible]

"And [illegible]" Mrs. Armour [illegible]

"And [illegible] here in two or three days!" blurted Marion hysterically.

Meanwhile Richard had hastily picked up The Times. "She is due here the day after tomorrow," he said deliberately. "Frank is as decisive as he is rash. Well, it is a melancholy [illegible] for that."

"What do you mean by tit for tat?" cried his father angrily.

"Oh, I mean that—that we tried to hasten Julia's marriage with the other fellow, and he's giving us one in return, and you will all agree that it's a pretty permanent one."

The old soldier recovered himself and was beside his wife in an instant. He took her hand. "Don't fret about it, wife," he said. "It's an ugly business, but we must put up with it. The boy was out of his head. We are old now, my dear, but there was a time when we should have resented such a thing as much as Frank, though not in the same fashion—perhaps—not in the same fashion." The old man pressed his lips hard to keep down his emotion.

"Oh, how could he, how could he!" said his mother. "We meant everything for the best."

"It is always dangerous business meddling with lovers' affairs," rejoined Richard. "Lovers take themselves very seriously indeed, and—well, here the thing is. Now, who will go and fetch her from Liverpool? I should say that both my father and my mother ought to go."

Thus Richard took it for granted that they would receive Frank's Indian wife into their home. He intended that, so far as he was concerned, there should be no doubt upon the question from the beginning.

"Never! She shall never come here!" said Marion with flashing eyes. "A common squaw, with greasy hair and blankets and big mouth and black teeth, who eats with her fingers and grunts! If she does, if she is brought to Greyhope, I will never show my face in the world again. Frank married the animal. Why does he shirk her home to us? Why didn't he come with her? Why does he not take her to a home of his own and not send her here to turn our house into a menagerie?"

Marion drew her skirt back, as if the common squaw, with her blankets and grease, was at that moment near her.

"Well, you see," continued Richard, "that is just it. As I said, Frank arranged this little complication with a trifling amount of malice. No doubt he didn't come with her because he wished to test the family loyalty and hospitality, but a postscript to his letter says that his solicitor has instructions to meet his wife at Liverpool and bring her on here in case we fail to show her proper courtesy."

General Armour here spoke. "He has carried the spirit of retaliation very far indeed, but then young men do mad things when their blood's up, as I have seen often. That doesn't alter our clear duty in the matter. If the woman were bad or shameful, it would be a different thing. It"——

Marion interrupted, "She has ridden bareback across the continent like a jockey—like a common jockey—and she wears a blanket, and she doesn't know a word of English, and she will sit on the floor."

"Well," said her father, "all those things are not sins, and she must be taught better."

"Joseph, how can you!" said Mrs. Armour indignantly. "She cannot—she shall not come here. Think of Marion! Think of our position!" She had her troubled, tear stained face behind her handkerchief. At the same time she grasped her husband's hand. She knew that he was right. She honored him in her heart for the position he had taken, but she could not resist the natural impulse of a woman where her taste and convention were shocked.

The old man was very pale, but there was no mistaking his determination. He had been more indignant than any of them at first, but he had an unusual sense of justice when he got face to face with it, as Richard had here helped him to do. "We do not know that the woman has done any wrong," he said. "As for our name and position, they, thank God, are where a mad marriage cannot unseat them. We have had much prosperity in the world, my wife. We have had neither death nor dishonor. We"——

"If this isn't dishonor, father, what is?" Marion flashed out.

He answered calmly: "My daughter, it is a great misfortune. It will probably be a life long trial, but it is not necessarily dishonor."

"You never can make a scandal less by trying to hide it," said Richard, backing up his father. "It is all pretty awkward, but I dare say we shall get some amusement out of it in the end."

"Richard," said his mother through her tears, "you are flippant and unkind."

"Indeed, mother," was his reply, "I never was more serious in my life. When I spoke of amusement, I meant comedy merely, not fun—the thing that looks like tragedy and has a happy ending. That is what I mean, mother, nothing more."

"You are always so very deep, Richard," remarked Marion ironically, "and care so very little how the rest of us feel about things. You have no family pride. If you had married a squaw, we shouldn't have been surprised. You could have camped in the grounds with your wild woman and never have been missed—by the world," she hastened to add, for she saw a sudden pain in his face.

He turned from them all a little wearily and limped over to the window. He stood there looking out into the limes where he and Frank had played when boys. He put his finger up, his unhandsome finger, and caught away some moisture from his eyes. He did not care to let them see his face nor yet to speak. Marion had cut deeper than she knew, and he would carry the wound for many a day before it healed.

But his sister felt instantly how cruel she had been as she saw him limp away and caught sight of the bowed shoulders and prematurely gray hair. Her heart smote her. She ran over and impulsively put her hands on his shoulder. "Oh, Dick," she said, "forgive me, Dick! I didn't mean it. I was angry and foolish and hateful."

He took one of her hands as it rested on his shoulder, she standing partly behind him, and raised it to his lips, but he did not turn to her; he could not.

"It is all right; it is all right," he said. "It doesn't make any difference. Let us think of Frank and what we have got to do. Let us stand together, Marion. That is best."

But her tears were dropping on his shoulder as her forehead rested on her hand. He knew now that whatever Frank's wife was she would not have an absolute enemy here, for when Marion cried her heart was soft. She was clay in the hands of the potter whom we call Mercy—more often a stranger to the hearts of women than men. At the other side of the room also the father and mother, tearless now, watched these two, and the mother saw her duty better and with less rebelliousness. She had felt it from the first, but she could not bring her mind to do it. They held each other's hands in silence. Presently General Armour said, "Richard, your mother and I will go to Liverpool to meet our son's wife."

Marion shuddered a little, and her hands closed on Richard's shoulder, but she said nothing.

Have you seen the grand new Union station at St. Louis, Mo.? If not, when you go east, be sure that you take the Missouri Pacific railway. All trains of this justly popular line enter this magnificent structure, the largest and finest railway station in the world.

THE BEST ROUTE EAST.

The Missouri Pacific railway is the only line running a solid vestibuled train without change between Colorado and St. Louis, Mo., where direct connections are made in the new grand Union station, for all points north, east and south.

THE WORLD REVOLVING ON ITS AXIS

Once every twenty-four hours finds the works of man from day to day improving on the old ideas of the passing century; and to-day, the new Union station at St. Louis, Mo., is attracting more attention than any improvement that has been offered to the travelling public by the railways of America since the first conception of steam as a motive power. The Missouri Pacific railway, fully abreast with the progress of the times offers to the traveler between the East and West, the quickest and best route, and all the luxuries and comforts of modern railway improvements. All of its trains enter the grand new Union station. Only one change of cars between Colorado and the Atlantic seaboard. When you go East, be sure that your ticket reads via the Missouri Pacific railway, and do not miss the opportunity to see this depot.

The new Union station at St. Louis, Mo., is the largest and finest structure of its kind in the world, covering fourteen acres of ground, and with a platform trackage of thirty tracks, affording a direct connection to all parts of the country over twenty-six diverging main lines of railway. All passenger trains of the Missouri Pacific railway enter this beautiful depot; travelers going east from Colorado have but one change of cars to make between Colorado and the Atlantic seaboard, and that in the finest depot on earth. Be sure that your ticket reads via the Colorado Short Line of the Missouri Pacific railway, "The Scenic Line Across the Plains."

THE BEST ROUTE EAST.

Remember the Missouri Pacific railway connects with all trains in the grand new Union station at St. Louis, Mo. Take the Missouri Pacific government fast mail when journeying eastward, and see the largest and finest Union station in the world.

THE BEST ROUTE EAST.

Speed, safety and comfort are assured all who may be journeying eastward via the Missouri Pacific railway, through St. Louis and the grand new Union station, the largest and finest depot structure in the world.

Wabash Route.

WHY TAKE THE WABASH

For St. Louis?

Because it is the shortest line, the best equipped line, runs free chair cars, buffet Pullmans, and gives you ample time in Kansas City for supper.

For Toledo or Detroit?

Because it is the shortest line, avoids transfer across the city in case you are going further east, and makes close connections with all trunk lines.

For New York or Boston?

Because it has solid through service from both Chicago and St Louis via Niagara Falls; gives forty minutes stop at the falls at seasonable time in the morning.

For all other Eastern Points?

Because its service is uniformly good and you can make no mistake in asking for tickets via the Wabash.

NOW'S YOUR CHANCE

To go east and take advantage of the exceedingly low rates offered by the Union Pacific railway—Chicago $22.50; St. Louis $15.

REDUCED RATES.

The Union Pacific, Sept. 28 to Oct. 6, will make a rate of $22.50 to Chicago; $15 to St. Louis; and cheap rates to all other eastern points. Magnificent vestibuled trains, through Pullman sleepers, dining and reclining chair cars. Quickest time to Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis, Boston and New York.

A GREAT RAILROAD.

By the absorption of the Chicago and Atlantic railway between Marion and Chicago, the Erie has at last effected its entrance into Chicago, and now occupies the proud distinction of being the only line between Chicago and New York entirely under one management.

One result of this is the arrangement whereby all the through trains of the Erie are now run solid between Chicago and New York without change. Passengers holding through tickets, whether first or second class, are able to go from Chicago to New York without changing cars.

Pullman's most modern sleeping cars are run on all through trains via this line, and on their Vestibule Limited, Pullman dining cars. No extra fare charged on this train. In fact, the rates via the Erie are lower than via any other route offering equal facilities.

FINISH THE COLISEUM.

The Coliseum is almost done. It must be finished. The sum of $2,000 is needed right away to finish the plastering and painting so that the building can be used this winter. If the building can be used this winter, the revenue from it will pay this sum: but the money must be raised now.

What this building means to our city has already been set forth in The Gazette. It means thousands of dollars of revenue every year to our business men. It means a larger addition to our resources than any other source can bring. Every dollar put into it is a good investment.

A meeting will be held this evening at the county court room in the interests of this enterprise. Every business man in the city should be there. One more pull all together will put the enterprise into shape to make money.

M'KINLEY'S PROGRESS.

Governor McKinley is one of the most effective campaigners in the Republican party, and it is a compliment to the party and to the American people that he is so. There is nothing flashy about him; he does not entertain his audiences with funny stories, nor startle them with artful epithets. He has a plain, straightforward story to tell, and he tells it without [illegible] or rhetorical decoration. It is the tremendous earnestness of the man, his great personal dignity, his lofty moral character, that gives impressiveness to what he says, and make him one of the best campaigners in America. People do not so much want to be amused and entertained by their campaign orators this year, as they do to listen to facts and arguments, presented clearly and by some man who means every word he says. That is why McKinley is such an effective speaker.

Governor McKinley is in demand all the time, and we suppose the people of Ohio are willing to lend him for the campaign to sister States whose Republicans need help. He has been in Indiana, Illinois, and Missouri, and across the river into Kansas. Everywhere he goes he meets with the same reception. It is because the people know that McKinley is absolutely sincere; that he is not campaigning because he is paid to make speeches, but because he wants to help his country into the path of prosperity. People feel that McKinley is no politician, that he has no personal axes to grind, and they respect him.

On the strength of this great popularity, we notice that many people are already nominating Mr. McKinley for the Presidency. For our own part, we believe that the better politician a man is, the better President he is likely to be, other things being equal. The careers of Hayes and Arthur are cases in point. But this is not the popular belief, and McKinley is more popular because he is no politician. As for the nomination for President, that is a long way off yet, and there is nothing to be gained by crossing that bridge before we get to it. If the Presidential election were to be held this year, and McKinley were the nominee, he would sweep every Northern State and Louisiana besides; but this year is not 1896, and no one can tell how the conditions may change before that time.

THE NATIONAL GAME.

It is only the echoes of the great baseball fight that have reached us out here, and we do not realize what a wonderful season it has been. More people have been to professional ball games this season than ever before. The National league is bigger than ever before, and there are more leagues outside of it than ever; and yet almost if not quite every club in the regular professional circuits has made money this summer.

There has been an old-fashioned enthusiasm for baseball in the East this year. The tribe of "rooters" has greatly increased. The newspapers have devoted columns upon columns, largely in that strange jargon which may be called baseball English, and which none but the initiate can understand, to the description of the contests with ball and bat.

It is no wonder that the Baltimoreans gave their team a rousing welcome when they came home with the coveted pennant. Baltimore is comparatively a newcomer in the National league, and until this year she has never been regarded as among the possible winners. This year's team, too, was composed mainly of new men, youngsters who had not played together, and what could they be expected to do against the Bostons, who had played together in substantially their present combination for four years; or against the New Yorks, with the greatest aggregation of stars in the country?

The credit for the victory is due mainly to Manager Hanlon. He was, if we recollect aright, the only manager who took his team south in the spring to get them into condition. When the season opened, they were in excellent form and began to win right from the word go. But everybody expected they would "strike the toboggan slide" before long, and after going up like a rocket, come down like the stick. But they did no such thing. When some of his pitchers became possessed of an overweening sense of their own importance—or, in the ordinary parlance, got the big-head—Mr. Hanlon gave them a salutary talk. When they showed a disposition, in the middle of the season, to celebrate their victories in the flowing bowl, he reasoned with them to such purpose that they postponed the celebration until after the pennant should have been won. In short, he has looked after them with the solicitude of a mother hen after her chickens; and now he has his reward.

Most of the other cities in the league are glad that Baltimore won. Boston has held the championship for three seasons. Before that Brooklyn had it, and before that, New York for two years. From 1876 to 1887, Chicago and Boston seemed to have a first and second mortgage on the pennant, for they kept it going back and forth in every year but two, when Providence got it. In 1887, the famous heavy hitters of Detroit came out ahead. Altogether, Chicago has held it six times, Boston six times, New York and Providence twice each, and Detroit and Brooklyn once each. Now Baltimore adds a new name to the list of champions.

Next year, if McIntire is elected and we can afford it, there ought to be some better baseball in this State. Amateurs make a more interesting contest than professionals, even if they are less skilful, and we see no reason now, why, if times are prosperous next summer, there should not be a Colorado league of some kind, which would give us some good sport.

* * *

Nobody seems to know who did it in New York. Some say it was an artful scheme of Hill's to force his own nomination. Some say that it was a job put up by Hill's enemies to take him out of politics. Some believe that it was really a spontaneous uprising for the only man who may be able to save New York Democracy from an awful disaster. Meantime Mr. Hill keeps his own counsel and has not yet accepted the nomination. It is not very safe to predict the future; but one thing we will venture to predict; that if Hill does accept the nomination he will not resign his seat in the United States Senate. He held on to the Governorship for nine months after he was elected Senator, and there is no reason why he should not hold to the Senatorship until he finds out whether he is going to be elected Governor. Either way he is sure of an office and sure of a prominent position in the party.

* * *

The packed audience which was able to get within the sound of the speaker's voice last night heard a speech the like of which they probably will not hear again. Mr. Taylor is not only eloquent, not only a rhetorician and an accomplished speaker; he is evidently a man who holds his American citizenship as one of his dearest and most sacred possessions, and he impressed on his audience the sacredness of the duty which lies before them at the ballot box this fall. It was an appeal to all that was best in them—an appeal that was earnest, even solemn, in its intensity. It will be heard and heeded.

* * *

Judge McIntire, as he always does, made an excellent impression on all of those who saw and heard him last night. He does not pretend to be an orator, but his words were words of truth and soberness, the utterance of a sound-thinking safe-judging, right-acting man—the sort of man we want for Governor of this State.

He's a Big Man.

The Republicans in Colorado ought to win this year. Their candidate for Governor, Albert W. McIntire, is a big man. He is a college graduate, Yale, we believe, was first a lawyer, then a judge in Colorado, and at present is a farmer. He made a speech in Denver the other night, and, as reported by The Times-Sun it is a better speech in some respects than has been made east or west so far in the present year. He gave a clearer idea of Populism and Populists than we have seen given before, and some of his words ought to be thoughtfully read in this region.—(Salt Lake Tribune.

The Five Talents.

If the man told about in the Bible, who "gained other five talents," had blown in his original five talents and come into the presence of his Master broke, he would have been a good Populist, a poor laboring man, etc. As it was he "gained other five talents" and so was a plutocrat, a loan shark, and a coupon clipper.—(Durango Southwest.

No More Free Trade.

The exact truth is this. A good many persons, knowing nothing from experience of the inability of the Democratic party to conduct the business of the government, and believing that the prosperity the nation had for 30 years under wise Republican laws was the free gift of nature, concluded in 1892 to vote for a change. Since that time the country has had 18 months' actual experience with the Democratic party in the unrestrained possession of power. During the whole period there have been panic, depression of business, shrinkage of values, and loss of wages by workingmen. The conclusion of the Democratic effort is a tariff bill which has warmed the heart of every manufacturer in Europe, which will enforce wage reductions in every industry, which is filled with sectionalism, and which is rank with favors extended to odious monopolies. The coming revolution will represent the conviction of the people that the exclusion of the Democrats from power for 30 years was the policy of patriotism and the determination of the nation to return to the protective system as a permanent policy. The free trade propaganda in this country has ended in failure. The cause of free trade in the United States is as dead as the cause of human slavery which this same Democratic party and this same Harper's Weekly apologized for and defended. No adult American now living will ever see another free trade plank in a national Democratic platform.—(Philadelphia Manufacturer.

Two Big Blunders

The troubles which afflict the business of this nation are all the results of stupid or wilful misgovernment, and they may be removed by the application to public affairs of ordinary wisdom. The prolonged, and in many respects terrible, idleness of multitudes of men; the reduction of wages; the constant fall of prices; the movement of great numbers of wealth-producers toward poverty and ruin may be traced to two causes. First, Congress has arranged that much of the work of supplying the wants of the nation shall be performed by Europeans, who will be busy while Americans are idle. Second, American silver has been demonetized, with the inevitable result that gold gains in value while everything else loses. The most pitiless and unscrupulous enemy of the United States could not have devised two policies better calculated to destroy the prosperity of the people. That a nation so intelligent as ours should have permitted its representatives to put such legislation in force might create doubt of the capacity of any people for self-government. That both the policies of destruction should find apologists and champions in the American press, is probably the most amazing fact now forced upon public attention. Having freed ourselves from the political domination of England, we have permitted her to control our fiscal and economical legislation in her interest in such a manner as would have excited resistance in colonial times. We are paying a heavy penalty for dependence upon British theory which is as servile and humiliating as it is destructive.—(Philadelphia Manufacturer.

FATAL ACCIDENT.

AN INDEPENDENCE MINER BLOWN TO PIECES.

Silver Ore from the Florence Road—The Lincoln Strike Continues to Improve—Contracts Let for Building Four New School Houses in the Cripple Creek District.

Special to The Gazette:

Cripple Creek, Oct. 3.—John Hero, a miner employed at the Independence mine, met with a fatal accident to-day at 1.15 p. m. The unfortunate man was engaged in picking out the tamping from a miss fire when the charge exploded and literally blew him to atoms. Hero was 32 years old and single, with a brother and sister living in Chicago. The remains will be gathered together and sent to that point. This is the first fatality that has occurred at the Independence, in spite of the number of men that have been employed there.

A prospector named John Macnamara brought in some ore from a claim which he owns and which is situated about midway between this place and Florence. The new find, from surface indications looks as though it might turn out something big in the way of silver, for the assay upon the ore values it at 800 per ton in the white metal and 3 per cent. copper. The strike was made between two walls of lime where there is a 15 foot vein with a 10 inch streak of the ore.

Some assays made on ore taken from the Little Chief situated on Raven hill, beats the record for that mine. The rock is of the blue quartz species so well known in camp for its high running qualities. It is in this instance valued at $800 per ton. The stuff was taken from the 100 foot level where there is a 14 inch streak but not all of it is of this high grade kind.

At the placers west of town it is claimed that the dirt washed returns over $4 per day to the man. A clean-up was made on the first of the month and this result was arrived at. The present owners are very well pleased with the result and are encouraged to persevere.

Mr. J. Maurice Finn, who was injured at the Caledonia yesterday, is reported as doing as well as can be expected and the doctor has permitted him to be moved to this city to-day. No fears of his recovery are now felt and it is thought he will be around in a few days.

The meeting of the directors of the Squaw Moutain Mining and Tunnel company was held to-day and Superintendent Loss was authorized to crowd work. The treasurer reported plenty of money on hand to pay for work. Next week two shifts will be put to work, whereas before this only one has been employed. The machinery, with air drills is expected every day and will be started up as soon as they can be placed in position. Messrs. Greenwood and Stevens, two of the directors, started for the East to-day with the object of selling some more of the company's treasury stock.

The Mineral Farm people, who own a large tract of mineral land several miles south of Victor, have completed all arrangements and will put several men to work in the morning.

Reports from the Lincoln situated just above the Anaconda prove the recent strike made there to be one of the best ever made in that section. The ore runs well and the lessees have a good big streak of it.

The Cripple Creek school board let contracts to-day for the building of four new school houses in the district. Two of these will be situated in Cripple Creek, will be two story buildings and measure 50x75 feet, another of the same size will be situated at Victor and a third, a single story building 50 feet square, at Anaconda.

Bob Lyons, marshal at Altman, was married this week to a Mrs. Toolev of the same place. Bob is one of the men who recently forfeited their bonds in the district court.

A HARD DAY'S WORK.

McKinley Made Thirteen Speeches to a Hundred Thousand People.

Hutchinson, Kan., Oct. 3.—That portion of the prairie of the Sunflower State farthest from Kansas City to Hutchinson was ablaze with Republican enthusiasm to-day. The citadel of Populism was stormed by Governor McKinley, miners, farmers, laborers, business men, members of various Republican clubs and school children turned out in tens of thousands to greet the champion of high tariff and listen to his counsel. During the 11 hours ending at 9 o'clock to-night he delivered 13 speeches to audiences which aggregated not less than 100,000 souls, and which were gathered from the country tributary to 900 miles of railroads as the crow flies. At midnight he left for Lincoln and Omaha. For the stretch of country to be covered between daylight and the arrival at the capitol of Nebraska at 2 o'clock nearly a dozen meetings have been arranged. To-morrow night he speaks at Omaha.

The special train bearing the Governor and the escorting members of the State Central committee of Kansas left Kansas City shortly after 6 o'clock. At Argentine, the first stop, a large crowd gathered and the Governor spoke briefly from the rear of the car. Two thousand men and women met the train at Lawrence and were addressed at length. "We believe in home industries," said Governor McKinley. "We do not want our work done abroad. We want it done in the United States by the laborers of our own people, and we don't want any European conditions here, or the wages of European labor here. We want the best labor attainable, and we would rather pay a little more than to have things so awfully cheap that we could get no work and therefore no money with which to buy them. The poorest time in the history of this country has always been when things were the cheapest. That is the experience and recollection of every man who stands before me to-day. When products are the cheapest distress is the most universal, and when products are the cheapest we have the least money in our pockets with which to buy them."

Topeka was reached at 9:30. Five thousand people were assembled at the depot and twice that number was in waiting before the south front of the State capitol building, to which he was escorted by a company of militia, the Missouri Township Flambeau Club mounted and in white uniforms; and the local Republican clubs. When the Governor appeared before the multitude the applause was deafening. He spoke for 20 minutes.

A thousand people, many of them miners with begrimmed faces and their lamps in their caps were in waiting at the depot at the mining town of Scranton, and they cheered to the echo when Governor McKinley said that coal was not a raw material, and that it should have equal protection with every other American product, and that not a ton of coal ought to be brought from Nova Scotia so long as there was an American miner ready to mine it while his pick was silent in the mine. At Burlingame and Osage City the Governor spoke to the same effect. At Emporia an audience of several thousand had assembled in a grove near the depot. Here the Governor said: "We want an American policy. The people can make and unmake Presidents and Congressmen. We don't want a British policy fastened upon the throats of the people of this country. Let Great Britain look after her own interests and let her keep her hands off ours. That is the rallying cry of 65,000,000 of American people to-day."

There were swarms of people at Strong City, Florence and Peabody. Many of them were farmers who said that they came distances of 10 to 20 miles. At each stopping place the enthusiasm seemed to increase. The school children turned out in force at nearly every point, armed with flags which they waved in unison with the cheers. At Strong City Gen. E. N. Morrill, the Republican nominee for Governor, made a brief speech, declaring that in 1897 there would be a new tariff bill and that it would be signed by William McKinley as President of the United States. When Newton was reached the throng was so dense that the train was run on a side track in the yards in order that all might have a chance to hear. Several hundred members of the Women's Republican Club were in the fore front, and presented the Governor with a bouquet and an address of welcome. "This is Jerry Simpson's district," yelled a spectator wearing a Grand Army hat and button, and, taking the cue, Governor McKinley made an earnest appeal to the voters of the district to elect their Republican nominee for Congress.

The climax of the day came when Hutchinson was reached shortly after 4 o'clock. From an early hour people had been coming in on special trains from the country for hundreds om miles around, the Santa Fe road along bringing in 50 packed coaches before noon. There were delegations from nearly every Congressional district in the State, and from points as far distant as Oklahoma Territory. Such a sea of human beings surged around the depot that it was considered advisable to leave the train at a crossing a few blocks distant. When this ruse was discovered there was a wild rush in that direction, and it seemed for a few moments, as though horses, carriages and occupants would be literally caught up and swept through Main street. The driver, however, whipped up his thoroughbreds and the Governor reached Riverside Park to receive the plaudits of an audience estimated at from 20,000 to 25,000.

Governor McKinley was escorted to his hotel amid another scene of wild excitement. To-night he addressed a second meeting at the Auditerium. Five thousand people managed to pack in before the doors were closed, as a precautionary measure.

A CITY'S PERILS.

Six Persons Were Killed in St. Louis Yesterday.

St. Louis, Oct. 3.—Six persons were killed here to-day by street car motors and railway engines. At noon, Michael Brennan, a messenger boy for the Terminal Railway Company, was run over and killed by a switch engine on Poplar street. At 7 a. m. Katie Schaefer, aged 7, who came here from Waterloo, Ill., to visit the Fair, was ground to a shapeless mass by a motor car of the Union depot line on Cherokee street. Thomas Ewing of Crystal City, Mo., aged 35, was killed by an Iron Mountain train on a trestle in the southern suburbs early this morning. His mangled body was found at 5 p. m. Johnnie E. Welsh, aged 6, was killed on the Wabash track in front of his father's house on Poplar street at 4 p. m. The remnants of the body found were taken to the morgue in a cigar box. At 4 p. m., Susie Sarragin, aged 11, and Roy Bartlett, a boy of 3 years, whom she was caring for, were killed by a Union depot motor car at Peck street and Kossuth avenue.

Wilson Acquitted.

Toronto, Oct. 3.—The Evening Telegram's London special cable says: In an article in the Inventor's Review Congressman Wilson makes a bitter attack on the Canadian Government. He says the system of log-rolling pursued by Canadian merchants is disgraceful.

The Canadian Government is assailed in denunciatory terms. Minister of Finance Foster's budget speech is likewise denounced as well as the policy of protection pursued by the Canadian Government. The Canadian Pacific railroad he says, has been promoted by devices the most unscrupulous ever employed. The road's completion has nearly ruined the Grand Trunk's credit.

In the Province of Quebec, Mr. Wilson, says, the public credit was so low that no money could be obtained in England on any terms.

The Chronicle, in its criticism of Mr. Wilson's remarks, says that Canada has been injured by too much injudicious booming. The Canadian Government has prepared misleading immigration returns. English and Irish immigrants speedily discovered that Canada's resources do not begin to compare with the United States, and leave the Dominion, where protection has done nothing, but mischief to Canada.

COLLEGE ATHLETICS.

An Athletic Association Organized at Colorado College.

A meeting of the students of the College and Cutler academy was held in the auditorium of the library at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. President Slocum, Bailey and Henderson of the Committee on Constitution reported a constitution which was adopted with very little modification. The scheme of organization is about as follows: The Colorado College Athletic association is composed of the members of Colorado College and Cutler Academy. Its objects are to centralise the various athletic interests of the College, to promote and encourage the pursuit of athletic sports and to foster a spirit of loyalty and enthusiasm among the members.

A board of trustees to have the chief control of the affairs, is composed of one member from each college class elected by his class, two from Cutler Academy and two from the faculty elected by those bodies, the latter, and also the physical director and three representatives at large, preferably citizens of the Springs, one of whom shall be alumnus ,al. elected by the board at its fall meeting.

There will be a president, secretary and treasurer, the latter to be chosen from the delegates at large. The trustees will select the managers of the football and baseball teams and arrange matches, control the property and the like.

Messrs. Murdock, Geo. Bailey and Roberts were appointed a committee to get up an entertainment for the benefit of the gymnasium fund. It is expected that money enough will be raised to thoroughly equip the gymnasium and put shower baths in the basement.

Robert Downing in "The Gladiator"

Robert Downing, the favorite American tragedian, who comes to the opera house on Saturday night for a brief engagement, has won his way to the front rank of heavy tragedians by the force of his native talent, and in the face of the traditional prejudices of those who were educated in the older schools of the drama for Mr. Downing is an originator, and not an imitator. He belongs to the school of to-day, and not to any of the past. In his interpretations of the great heroic characters there is much that is new, and yet he as surely makes his points and carries his audiences with him as did the older and more vehement artist in the same days. Mr. Downing has achieved the first place among legitimate actors for this very reason. He is now making his first tour west of Denver and will visit this city Friday evening, producing that great play "The Gladiator."

By Taking

AYER'S PILLS

"For fifteen years, I was a great sufferer from indigestion in its worst forms. I tested the skill of many doctors, but grew worse and worse, until I became so weak I could not walk fifty yards without having to sit down and rest. My stomach, liver, and heart became affected, and I thought I would surely die. I tried Ayer's Pills and they helped me right away. I continued their use and am now entirely well. I don't know of anything that will so quickly relieve and cure the terrible suffering of dyspepsia as Ayer's Pills."—JOHN C. PRITCHARD, Brodie, Warren Co., N. C.

MR. A. D. PEARSON is now forming primary music classes for the winter. Children and beginners will be placed in care of Miss Warner, who has been eminently successful in this work. Young children will receive short daily lessons at their homes, by which method the most rapid and thorough progress is made.

Terms for this class $6 per month. Pupils who have made some progress will receive two lessons a week, for $4.50 per month.

These classes will be under Mr. Pearson's supervision, and each pupil will receive his personal attention at monthly recitals.

Application should be made to

MISS M. I. WARNER,
115 E. Willamette Ave.

Colorado Springs Exchange.

Colorado Springs, Oct 3—The market this morning was remarkable for its great strength more particularly in Isabella, Mollie Gibson, Anaconda and Argentum J The pit was crowded with brokers more than ever it has been before and with a corresponding number of visitors outside the rail it made a lively scene Mr Percy Hagerman was amongst the brokers present it being his first visit to the exchange

Mollie Gibson was actively bid for at increased figures but in spite of this fact only small blocks were parted with It closed very strong at $1,40 bid and $1 42 1-2 asked though it is thought improbable that much would have been allowed to go at the latter figure There was only one sale of Isabella, a block of 10,000 which was eagerly snapped up at 10 3-4 after that the asked price was at [illegible] to 12 for 10 000 Anaconda has increased both in the bid and asked price and is actively bid for at a price that would have been gladly accepted only three or four days ago Gold and Globe Consolidated and Summit are all active though the latter with Pharmacist [illegible] A bid of 1 1-2 for 5000 C O D would not tempt anyone to part with their stock

Business at the second call was confined chiefly to Mollie Gibson and although the number of sales were not very many the activity of the bidders was exceptionally brisk and the strength of the stock amazing The total sold was [illegible] shares which went at from $1 4[illegible] to $1 5[illegible] and it closed at $1 [illegible] the highest point reached for many months past Argentum J also continues strong and a block of 500 changed hands at 72½ the bid price at the close There was no trading in Isabella but the stock is firm and the next transactions that take place are expected to be at increased figures The bid price of C O D which has remained so long at 3½ was increased to 4 but no sales were consummated The total sales for the day amounted to 25 450

The separate sales for the first call were 500 [illegible]0 and 100 Mollie Gibson at $1 40 1000, 1000 and 1000 Summit at 13⅝ 1000 Mount Rosa at 3½ 350 Gold and Globe at 3½ and 200 at 3⅜, 1500 and 5000 Consolidated at 1⅝, 10 000 Isabella at 10½ For the second call they were Mollie Gibson 100 and 350 at $1 45, 1000 and 100 at $1 50 and 1000 at $1 55 Argentum J 500 at 72½ Anaconda 200 at 22¼ Fannie Rawlings 500 at 9¾

Special to The Gazette

Denver Oct 3—Receipts at the mint to-day show an improvement not in the number of deposits but in weight, and it is this latter that counts As the aggregation of Tuesday's receipts are above the average for September to-day's must then also be so making the third day upon which this has happened The following counties are credited with deposits Summit, one deposit of 11 ounces, San Juan, two of 65 ounces Park, one of 7 ounces Gilpin 9 of 321 ounces and Colorado Unknown 463 ounces The total number of deposits was 14 aggregating 867 ounces

Current News

Mollie Gibson is humming

Prospectors are busy again at Turkey Creek

Work on the Stanley mill in the Front Range district is going ahead and will soon be completed

An assay upon ore taken from a small streak in the Caledonia ran 5628 ounces in gold to the ton It will take a lot of work to get a ton of it out

It is rumored that the Rosetta is soon to resume operations This property is directly across the gulch from the C O D This mine has a good shaft house and steam hoist and is said also to have a good vein so there is nothing to hinder it from soon becoming a shipper

A splendid blue print about six feet square was received at the exchange to-day the gift of Messrs Luckraft and Countryman the well known United States deputy surveyors at Cripple Creek It shows all the patented claims, rail and wagon roads town sites, creeks etc with great clearness and accuracy

The Crusher says that so much capital is being invested in plants for the reduction of low grade Cripple Creek ores is proof sufficient that the miner will soon have a market and a profitable one at that for $12 rock The Crusher has evidently overlooked the fact that the Bartlett people propose to give $4 to the miner on all $10 ore

Mr Percy Hagerman made his first visit to the pit yesterday morning

There are many mines at camp which have a grand showing yet for some reason or other they are not worked Were this different double the amount of ore would be shipped and twice as many men put to work It will however, all come in the future

Doubleday Rope & Co in their weekly letter say There has been considerable trading in Portland and the stock is now commanding a good deal of attention Many Eastern investors are making inquiries owing to the probability of its becoming a large and regular dividend payer The latest reports from the mine are very encouraging and we understand that it is estimated that the Anna Lee and Portland alone will have shipped about 900 tons each this month, and that the gross value of total output will probably be about $200 000 The stock is firm at 40 cents

The leasing of the Lee-Smuggler ground to Mr C D Roudebush is looked upon as a very significant and satisfactory arrangement by the Isabella stockholders but it is of course commented upon and regretted by many, that the company did not undertake this work themselves There may be however, good reasons for not doing so lack of money in the treasury for instance, not known to the outside public which will, at any rate be amply compensated for when the Victor vein is fully opened up in Isabella ground and if handsome royalties are paid on all ore extracted therefrom by the lessee to the company It is understood that all leases granted by the company limit the workers going beyond a certain depth so that whilst these leases may be profitable to all concerned they are bound to be of splendid prospecting and development value without allowing too much ore being taken The distance between the Lee end line which adjoins the Victor on the north, and the north end line of the Buena Vista is 3000 feet and it is possible that both these great veins run two-thirds of the way along them Splendid showings have also been made in the Lee and Smuggler but whether these veins are continuations of the Buena Vista or Victor, has yet to be shown. A compromise with the discoverers of the Smuggler vein, which was opened up on the Lee ground, is understood to have cost the company about $15,000, so some substantial benefits should be derived from that ground and this is likely to happen when the Victor vein is opened up there, which it assuredly will be.

THE BEST WESTERN TOWN.

Over twenty years ago—not a long time, either, in the life of a town—an enthusiastic "boomer," in making a speech at the opening of the first hotel in this town, predicted that the village of Colorado Springs, on account of its natural advantages and splendid location, would contain 3000 inhabitants within twenty years. The prediction has been fulfilled, the town has almost 18,000 inhabitants, and is now the best city in the United States west of the Missouri river. It is not the largest city, but it is the soundest and most prosperous. Denver is much larger, so is Pueblo, but if we were to advertise that we could trade Colorado Springs real estate for real estate in Denver or Pueblo we would receive such a flood of offers that one clerk could not answer the letters This statement is a fact, and it tells whole volumes Denver was built from the dozen or so good mines of Leadville Colorado Springs commands the finest mountain pass in the Rockies, and has more than a hundred good mines to draw from In time it will be one of the largest, as well as best, of Western cities. It has good, natural gas, climate, scenery, and advantageous location—just five times as many resources as the average town has. It is a good place to live, and if you buy real estate here it will make money for you

We have as good a house for $5000 as any man can build for that money. It has 9 rooms, bath, sanitary plumbing, range, electric lights, big basement, linen room, store room, and furnace It is worth looking into if you need a home.

A vacant lot on North Tejon street, under the ditch, for $1,050

50x190 corner on North Weber, near business, for $2250 if sold this week.

A centrally located business property for $8500 The small building now on it rents to pay 9 per cent, and a new building will pay even better.

20 acres of land in the northern part of the city, cheap This will soon be in demand for residence lots, and there is big money in buying it now.

SUGAR CLAIMED A MONOPOLY IN NEW YORK.

The General List Left off Barely Steady—A War Rumor Bulge in Wheat—Reported Cabinet Meeting in England Causes a Small Rise.

New York, Oct. 3.—Money on call has been easy at 1 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 4@4½. Bar silver 62¾; Mexican dollars 51¼. Sterling exchange is strong with actual business in bankers' bills at 4.85@4.86 for sixty days and 4.86½@4.87 for demand. Posted rates 4.86½@4.87½. Commercial bills 4.84½@4.85¼.

Government bonds firm; state bonds dull; railroad bonds lower. Silver at the board 63 bid.

To-day's declines at the stock exchange aggregated 251,447 shares, of which 138900 were American Sugar. This is the best analysis of the day's stock speculation that can be offered. It was Sugar from start to finish, the other prominent issues having been relegated to a subsidiary position. Efforts were made at one time to drag in the foreign political complications growing out of the aggressiveness of the French in Madagascar, but when the selling for foreign account ceased, the general list showed a tendancy to improve. London was credited with selling about 30,000 shares of various stocks, of which Louisville and Nashville figured for 5,000 shares. This stock was unfavorably influenced by a forecast of the annual report, but when the statement was published the stock recovered about a point to 54⅞ after selling down 1¼ to 54. Rock Island and St. Paul were lower early in the day on the poor exhibits for September. Sugar, however, was the great feature, the stock falling to 82¾, the lowest point yet touched. After this there was a sharp rally and the stock advanced to 86⅝, fully 30,000 shares of shorts having been covered on the way up. This was followed by a break to 83½ to 83⅞. The stock was feverish throughout, and its erratic movements are still ascribed to manipulations. Chicago Gas advanced to 71¼, broke to 68¾, owing to the clashing of realizing orders and later recovered to 70⅜@70. Lead lost a point or so and General Electric was weak earlier in the day, but closed unchanged at 37⅝. The general list left off barely steady. Net losses were ⅛ to 1 per cent, lead leading. Sugar gained ¾ and Burlington and Quincy and Distillers ¼ per cent. In the inactive stocks Manhattan fell 1¼ to 115, and Louisville, New Albany and Chicago preferred 3¾ to 21.

The bond market was more active lower. Sales were $1,238,000.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

War Rumors Lend Strength to Both Wheat and Corn.

Chicago, Oct. 3.—Wheat had a war rumor this morning. It was a small one, and was followed by the usual easier feeling that takes place after this character of news. The report that a special meeting of the English cabinet had been called for Thursday, with an accompanying decline in English consols, caused no little anxiety in speculative minds at the opening of the wheat market to-day. As the reason for the call was still a matter of conjecture, there was a waning of the fervor with which buyers took hold later in the session. There is no doubt that in the event of anything like serious complications the buying of wheat would receive an impetus, but pending action on the part of the English Government, there is a decided difference among operators. Liverpool cables were steady at the opening, whilst the close was at an advance of 3 pence per quarter. Berlin and Paris were lower and Antwerp unchanged. Export clearances were good, wheat and flour amounting to 513,845 bushels, going out at the seaboard. Receipts were light, Chicago having but 90 cars and the Northwest 697. Withdrawals from store were 67,355 bushels. December wheat opened at 53⅛, sold between 53⅝ and 52⅞, closing at 53—¼ cent higher than yesterday. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 70 cars.

New York reported 20 loads taken for export to-day.

Corn—Similar strength to that displayed by wheat was felt in corn to-day. Shorts were disposed to cover, lest perhaps there might be something of a serious nature in the war talk. There was also a little investment buying by those who are always ready to rely on the truth of rumors. The receipts were small, at 101 cars and only 870 are expected to-morrow. Cables were steady. Exports were light at 14,293 bushels, and 186,693 bushels were taken from store. May corn opened at 49¼ to 49⅝, advanced to 50¼, eased off and closed at 49¾—⅜@½ higher than yesterday.

Wheat—October, 50¾; December, 53; May, 58¾.

Corn—October, 48⅜; December, 47⅞; May, 49¾.

Oats—October, 28⅝; December, 29⅝; May, 33½.

Lard—October, 7.87½; January, 7.42½.

DANGER.

Many of our citizens may not be aware that we have already established in our midst that which will, if permitted, cause us more trouble than a cyclone or a pestilance. It is the Russian Thistle.

It will take possession of every foot of land in El Paso County and make it absolutely worthless, and that in a very short time.

By a unanimous vote of the City Council at its last session the Police Committee were instructed to confer with the County Commissioners and take such measures as they together saw fit.

Therefore, we, the said committee, jointly with the County Commissioners, do hereby appeal to every citizen of Colorado Springs and El Paso County who own property or are in any way interested, to make investigations and destroy by fire every vestage of said weed on or adjacent to their property, and use their influence with their neighbors to do the same.

Samples of the weed can be seen in many of the stores and public buildings in the city.

By order of the committee.

E. S. BUMSTEAD,
Chairman Police Committee.
C. W. LONG,
Chairman County Commissioners.

BRILLIANT WEDDING.

Marriage of D. G. Collie-MacNeil l and Miss Frances Higginson.

A happy and very brilliant social event last evening was the marriage of Mr. Douglas Gerald Collie-MacNeill to Miss Frances Higginson. The ceremony occurred at St. Stephen's Episcopal church in the presence of a distinguished company of people. The ceremony was at 8:30 o'clock, the Rev. Philip Washburn, rector of St. Stephen's, officiating. The church had been beautifully decorated with ferns, palms and flowers for the occasion. The ushers were Messrs. E. C. Thursby-Pelham, William Evans, J. Arthur Connell and A. Carnduff. The bridesmaids were Miss Marie De Coursey and Miss Faith Ripley. Miss Higginson, sister of the bride, and little Miss Crosby were the maids of honor. Mr. Clarence Edsall was the groom's best man, and Masters Godfrey Smith and Jefferson Hayes Davis were the pages. The bride and the bridesmaids were in white and carried pink, the maids of honor were in white and pink.

Immediately after the ceremony a reception was given at the cottage of Miss Higginson on North Cascade avenue, attended by only the bridal party and a few intimate friends. Among those at the reception were Mr. and Mrs. Crosby, Dr. and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. F. Ogilvy-Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. L. Tutt, and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hayes. The bridal couple left during the evening for a trip of several weeks, their destination being kept a secret for the present.

Mr. Collie-MacNeill is a member of the firm of McNeill & Wandell, mining brokers, and has been a resident of this city for a number of years. The bride has also resided here for a number of years, and is a daughter of the late Charles Henry Higginson of Carnalea House, County Down, Ireland.

DEFECTIVE EYESIGHT,

In youth or age, should be scientifically fitted with lenses. The rapid loss of eyesight in age can very often be traced to the neglect of the proper care of the eyes in youth, and cheap, poorly-fitted lenses. Errors of eyesight develop most rapidly during school life and should be corrected by accurately-fitted lenses, no matter what the age.

Our optical department is in charge of a specialist, in both the scientific adjustment of lenses and their manufacture, hence a perfect fit of glasses, from $1 upwards.

Office hours from 9 to 12 a. m., 1 to 5 p. m.
